By Robert Schrank

MIT Press Ltd, United States, 1979. Paperback. Book Condition: New. New edition. 229 x 147 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Robert Schrank is a Project Specialist at the Ford Foundation, and he holds a master s and doctorate in the sociology of work. He serves as consultant to the New York City Mayor s Productivity Council, the National Academy of Sciences, the U.S. Department of Labor, other governmental bodies, and universities. So another academic specialist has written another book about the values and goals -- or the lack of them, or their decline, or whatever -- of working stiffs, about which he knows from nothing, right? Wrong. This particular academic specialist didn t get to college until he was over forty, and earned (the right word for a working man) his doctorate when he was in his fifties. For more than forty years -- ten thousand working days -- from the age of fourteen on, he has held down an astonishing variety of jobs that cover both a wide occupational range and just about every level, from the top to the bottom, in the organizational scheme of things. He has been a plumber, a...
