MARTIN COUNTY. The following resolutions were adopted by a Democratic Convention at Dorea Hill, in July, 1864. The Convention was addressed by Judge Perkins, the editor of the Indianapolis Daily Herald, and it is understood that he is the author of the resolutions: Resolved, That we are opposed to, and earnestly protest against, the nomination of a war Democrat for the Presidency, believing that the present deplorable war can not be prosecuted, except in violation of the spirit and principles of the Constitution, and in opposition to the doctrines which distinguished the Democratic party. Resolved, That the Democracy can not. introduce a war plank into their national platform without a sacrifice of...
