Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Speech of Mr. Winthrop, of Mass., On the Mexican War: Delivered in the House of Representatives of the United States, January 8, 1847 The House being in Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, and having under consideration a bill to raise for a limited time an additional military force, and for other purposes Mr. Winthrop said, that if he could have selected his own time for addressing the committee, he would not have followed so closely in the wake of his honorable and excellent friend from Georgia, (Mr. Toombs,) who had just taken his seat. But, after watching and struggling for the flour for three or four days, he could not forego the opportunity of saying what he had to say now, even to avoid the disadvantage of placing his remarks in immediate contrast with a speech which had attracted so large a measure of attention and admiration. I am not prepared, (Mr. W. proceeded to say,) to vote for the bill now under consideration. I certainly cannot vote for it in its present shape. I doubt whether I can be brought to vote for it in any shape, under the present circumstances of the country. But, before dealing with its particular provisions, or with the principles and policy which it involves, I desire to submit a few considerations of a more general and comprehensive character. I am not one of those, Mr. Chairman - if, indeed, there be any such in this House - who think it incumbent on them to vote against all supplies in a time of war, because they do not approve the manner in...
