Singh's daring illustrations will appeal to older children eager to leave the world of candy-colored cuteness behind." - New Yorker "At last, the legend of the brave, if peculiar, companions who set out to bag a snark (arming themselves "with forks and with hope") gets lavish treatment from [Mahendra] Singh. These may be the fittest illustrations ever created for Carroll's distinctively Victorian nonsense concoctions." - Laura Miller, Salon "[C]hallenging and delightful." - Marilyn Dahl, Shelf Awareness "It is not children who ought to read the words of Lewis Carroll." - G.K. Chesterton "Singh's black-and-white surrealistic treatment of Carroll's classic poem is perfect. takes the ideology of Carroll's nonsense to new visual levels. Far beyond a simplistic, literal depiction of the poem, each panel is thoughtfully created, filled with puzzles, jokes, and allusions." - Library Journal From the Hardcover edition.
